BLACK HISTORY MONTH

Rev. Dr. Oscar L. Montgomery

For more than four decades, Dr. Montgomery has served as Pastor of the Union Hill Primitive Baptist Church in Huntsville, Ala., growing its membership from 60 to over 700.

Graduating from Purdue University in 1976, Dr. Montgomery returned to Alabama A&M University where blessings of God upon his life were evident as he rose rapidly through the academic ranks from Assistant Professor to Associate Professor to Professor and ultimately Vice President.

During his 22-year tenure at AAMU, while serving as a lecturer, professor, researcher and administrator Dr. Montgomery amassed an extensive collegiate background.

In addition to fulfilling his preaching, teaching, equipping, ministering, and administering responsibilities as pastor, Dr. Montgomery in 1989, following God's vision for the Union Hill congregation, successfully led the church to construct a Christian Worship and Educational Facility at the cost of approximately $2 million dollars. In 1997, he led the congregation in the construction of a $2.5 million dollar Community Life Center for the purpose of ministry to the Huntsville community. Union Hill currently sits on a 35-acre campus, all acquired during his tenure.

At the top of the community activist's credits and accomplishments lies the love of his wife, the former Alfredia L. Marshall, and their four children and grandchildren Paula Rodney (Andrew), Renita Woodard (Eric), Christa, and Oscar, Jr; one granddaughter, Eden Grace Rodney, and three grandsons, Langston, Alijah, and Royce.

Valley Community Remembers Mr. "Absolutely Not!"

Family, former co-workers and scores of friends came together in mourning and celebration of the life of Erskine L. Valrie during a local Friday, February 12, graveside service at Valhalla Memory Gardens.

A native of Deland, Fla., Valrie attended Southwestern High School as an academically stellar athlete. He enrolled at Alabama A&M University on a four-year scholarship, playing football under the legendary Coach Louis Crews, as well as professionally in the Continental Football League. In the athletic records of AAMU, and the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Conference (SIAC), he holds the record for the punting average of 46.5 yards per kick. When asked if an athlete has surpassed him, he proudly responded, "Absolutely not!"

He went on to earn a master's degree from AAMU in urban studies and was a major supporter in the school's athletics program.

After a brief stint with the Model Cities Demonstration Agency in Huntsville, Ala., Valrie's professional career included productive experiences at community planning agencies in Montgomery and Tuskegee, Ala.; the Small Business Administration in Birmingham, Ala.; Redstone Federal Credit Union; and the Von Braun Center.

A member of Omega Psi Phi Fraternity, Inc., he was a diligently participant on the Trustee Ministry of Union Chapel Missionary Baptist Church.

He was married to his college sweetheart, Georgia Sharp Valrie, and was the father of two daughters, Lisa Kinsey Smith and Kreslyon Lynette Valrie, and four grandchildren: Kalila D. Fleming, Ensign Kyle E. Fleming, Courtney Courtney Smith, and Kory E.. Fleming.

CALLLED 2 PREACH

REV. MICHAEL RICE

"His Works and His Ways"

Daniel 4:37;
Proverbs 6:16-19

This verse houses the humbled words of King Nebuchadnezzar following his "pasture arrest" experience. He made the mistake of giving himself credit for being in a palace and because he dismissed the warning by Daniel, God re-located him from the palace to a pasture. This long and lasting descent taught Neb how to praise God rather than himself.

The story sounds satirical, but it was anything but. That experience detoxified the heart of the king and flushed his soul and heart of all that putrid pride that had built up over the years prior to the event. It was Nebuchadnezzar's concession speech. His previous resistance was squashed while hanging out with cattle and from a position of restoration he made this statement, "Now I, Nebuchadnezzar praise and extol and honor the King of heaven, all whose works are truth, and

His ways justice." Note this bold bottom-line to his discovery, "And those who walk in pride He is able to put down."

While many debate what they call "the sin" that is an abomination to God, He says this through the writer of Proverbs that there are six things that He hates and seven are an abomination. At the top of that list is "a proud look." Note that it is the "look" not the "acts" that God hates. Nebuchadnezzar learned that lesson the hard way.

It is the restored king who needs to be heard, not the resisting one.

CHAMPION GAME PLAN

PRESTON BROWN

"MORE THAN POLITICS"

Luke 15:7 says, "I tell you that in the same way there will be more rejoicing in heaven over one sinner who repents than over ninety-nine righteous persons who do not need to repent."

You know, one of the things that I love most about Jesus is that He meets us where we are, but refuses to leave us there. He meets us in our sinful ways and says "Go and sin no more."

The main theme in the book of Luke is that Jesus came to seek and save the lost. And, He was especially sensitive to those who were hurting, because He knew that hurting people hurt other people.

That's why He had no problem eating with sinners and tax collectors. In this scripture, Luke talks about the love that God has for sinners and he explains them in the form of "lost things." First, a lost sheep. Then, a lost coin. And, then a lost son.

In all of these stories, the "lost" are found and, when it happens, everyone rejoices. Even the angels in heaven rejoice. The message that is revealed here is, God places great value on one repenting sinner. Therefore clarifying his mission that "He came to seek and save sinners," Jesus came to deal with much more than "political issues" and financial statements.

Jesus reminds us that there will be more rejoicing over a redeemed soul, than settling any differences of opinions that continue to dominate our way of life.

Stay encouraged, my brothers and sisters, and make sure you purchase a copy of my book "A CHAMPION GAME PLAN FOR LIFE" at amazon.com.

The Gospel According to my Positive COVID-19 Test

"Write my answer on a billboard, large and clear, so that anyone can read it at a glance and rush to tell the others. . . . But these things I plan won't happen right away. Just be patient! They will not be overdue a single day!"

- Habakkuk 2:2,3.

God here instructed Habakkuk that writing God's vision would make it both permanent and portable, so that its readers could broadcast it widely. God then cautioned him to wait on his blessings.

God sent me a similar message at an extremely inconvenient time.

Why me, Lord? And why now?

I tested COVID-19 positive during the Black Friday-New Year's Day season, when U.S. businesses make 40% of their revenues.

At the time, I was scurrying to promote my current book, trying to launch my second book, and looking to publish a 2021 devotional book curated from my Valley Weekly columns.

But God allowed my COVID-19 to re-prioritize my life.

Since March, I've been doing everything right. I was an uber-facemasking, 20-second hand washing and six-feet-socially-distancing poster child!

But God chose to make me an example, . . .

God's three vaccinations: Whoa, Slow and No!

First God showed me how unrealistic, self-stressing, and flatly inhumane my timetables were. Deadlines are now relaxed, and the 2021 devotional book will now debut in 2022.

Next, God reminded me that he's my marketer and responsible primarily for its success. Not me.

Finally throughout my 14-day self-isolation, Matthew 6:33's "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you" awakened me each morning as my new pursuit.

I then realized that I was doing more for Amazon when I should've been doing more for God.

Hopefully, I won't need a relapse of a deadly disease to relearn those lessons. Make more realistic deadlines. Reprioritize who's the boss. And practice more long-range planning.

And so should you.

A&M's Bulldog LIFE Program Assists Young Adults with Intellectual Disability

For those that did not know, Alabama A&M University started Bulldog Learning Independence Fostering Education and Employment (LIFE) in 2017. Out of 285 Postsecondary programs for young adults with intellectual disabilities in the nation, AAMU is the first and only historically black college and university with this distinction.

How did Bulldog LIFE start? A proposal to the Alabama Council on Disabilities was funded in the amount of $225,000, in collaboration with the University of Memphis Institute on Disabilities (UMID).

Dr. Sharon Brown, program director, (pictured) worked two to three years to put the infrastructure in place, and the first cohort was received in 2018. Prior to accepting the first students, the program achieved federal status via the College Transition Program (CTP) with the Department of Education. This permits students who are eligible to receive the Pell Grant. Based on the CTP, students are eligible to receive a scholarship in the amount of $1,700 for two semesters from the Alabama Department of Rehabilitation Services (ADRS).

The first cohort finished its Certificate of Completion in May 2020, but COVID-19 hit, hampering recruitment efforts with the local schools. Through Huntsville City Schools support, the program has continued to make progress using Zoom and other technology to recruit young people for Bulldog LIFE.

In a recent meeting with Sheila Johnson, graduation coach at Mae C. Jemison High School, she stated, "We are ecstatic that our students are afforded the opportunity to take advantage of this program."

The Alabama A&M Bulldog LIFE Postsecondary Education Program is a 60-hour program culminating in a completion award certificate in Career and Community Studies.

Participation in the Bulldog LIFE program provides students with an option for continuing their education beyond high school to increase employment opportunities. The program provides an individualized program of study in the areas of academic, social, vocational and independent living skills for students ages 18-29 with intellectual disabilities.

Bulldog LIFE as a part of its application process requires the student to provide a copy of secondary transcript, secondary IEP, and any psychological or vocational assessments that confirm that the student has received a diagnosis as an intellectual disability.

Persons with intellectual disabilities are defined in HEA Sec. 484(s), who (1) have a cognitive impairment characterized by significant limitations in intellectual and cognitive functioning and adaptive behavior as expressed in conceptual, social, and practical adaptive skills; and (2) are currently or were formerly eligible for special education and related services under the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA).

This includes individuals who were determined eligible for special education or related services under IDEA but were homeschooled or attended private school. At the heart of Bulldog LIFE is a person-centered planning model that uses the Systems Approach to Placement assessment instrument to develop a specialized program that best fits the unique skills, abilities, and needs of each student admitted into the program.

The Bulldog LIFE program is administered by AAMU's Rehabilitation Counseling concentration, designed to assist people with physical and developmental disabilities in finding meaningful and lasting employment, and serves as a community rehabilitation provider (CRP) for mid-south regional area vocational rehabilitation departments in Arkansas, Mississippi and Tennessee.

For additional information, contact Dr. Sharon Brown, CRC, coordinator of Rehabilitation Counseling/director of Bulldog LIFE, at (256) 372-8002 or e-mail sharon.brown@aamu.edu.

AAMU, IBM Form Tech Collaboration

Students majoring in the STEM disciplines at historic Alabama A&M University are getting an extra boost, thanks to a new collaboration between AAMU and IBM.

The University and the more than century-old high-technology company are teaming to provide special software and related expertise to support faculty and students in the science, technology, engineering and mathematics (STEM) disciplines. The collaboration invites Alabama A&M to be a part of the IBM Academic Initiative, the IBM Skills Academy and related IBM awards.

The IBM Academic Initiative offers professors and students access to the latest technologies in open source and IBM software, hardware, and many other resources. Similarly, the IBM Skills Academy is a worldwide program that works through university faculty to provide students job market advantages.

"Alabama A&M University is excited about the possibilities that this offers faculty to enhance our academic programs," said AAMU President Andrew Hugine, Jr. "IBM is a leader in the tech sector, and the University is excited to be a part of this initiative to incorporate cutting-edge technology into our curriculum."

Because of the collaboration, AAMU faculty and students will now have opportunities to earn badge certificates in such key areas as artificial intelligence (AI), cybersecurity, Internet of things, quantum computing, data science, cloud computing, design thinking and blockchain. Thus, the program is designed to develop diverse and high demand skill sets that align with industry needs and trends, so both students and faculty can develop the skills they need today for the jobs of tomorrow.

"Equal access to skills and jobs is the key to unlocking economic opportunity and prosperity for diverse populations," said Valinda Scarbro Kennedy, HBCU program lead, IBM Global University Programs. "IBM is deeply committed to helping HBCU students build their skills to better prepare for the future of work. Through this collaboration, A&M students will have an opportunity to gain modern skills in emerging technologies across hybrid cloud, quantum and AI, so they can be better prepared for the future of work in the digital economy."

AAMU is the top producer of African American STEM graduates in Alabama and among the top three nationally among all Historically Black Colleges and Universities (HBCUs). The University offers degrees in multiple STEM disciplines, including computer science and various engineering programs.

"This collaboration will not only enhance our academic capabilities," added Dr. Archie Tucker, AAMU's vice president for marketing, communication and advancement, "but it can also create a more marketable student and provide us with an even better competitive recruiting advantage when seeking prospective students."

Alabamian WILL MASTIN

Leader of the Will Mastin Trio

Will Mastin, the leader of the famous Will Mastin Trio, was born in Madison, Ala., on June 20, 1878, to a single mother named Sally Mastin, according to an 1880 census report.

The Will Mastin Trio included Sammy Davis Sr. and his son Sammy Davis Jr. Mastin was also the "uncle" of Sammy Davis Jr., as the older Sammy and Mastin were good friends.

The original members of the Trio were Sammy Davis Sr., Howard M. Colbert Jr., and Will Mastin. Sometimes Sammy Jr. would join them on stage when he was a little boy, beginning when he was only age 3.

Colbert was Sammy Jr.'s tap-dance teacher and also treated the child like an uncle. However, Colbert left the Trio in December 1941 to join the United States Army when the United States declared war on Germany during World War II.

Sammy Davis Jr. was 16 years old at this time and became part of the main vaudeville act, replacing Colbert. Mastin and the Sammy Jr. and Sammy Sr. performed in the 1947 musical short film "Sweet and Low" and the 1956

Will Mastin Trio: Sammy Davis Sr., Sammy Davis Jr., and Will Mastin

Broadway musical "Mr. Wonderful."

According to reports, the three performed from the 1920s through the 1960s. However, the trio stopped performing when Sammy Davis Jr. was called to serve in the Army in 1943, but resumed in Portland, Ore., after the end of the War. Even when Sammy Davis Jr.'s solo career was successful, during the 1950s and 1960s, he still performed occasionally with his father and uncle as the Will Mastin Trio, typically giving them billing on his shows and singles.

In 1953, Sammy Davis Jr. was offered his own television show on ABC. He was still under contract with Will Mastin, so the show was intended to be called "Three for the Road — with the Will Mastin Trio."

According to Wikipedia reports, the network spent $20,000 filming the pilot, which presented African Americans as struggling musicians, as opposed to "the usual slapstick comedy or stereotypical mammy roles of the time."

The cast included Frances Davis, who was the first black ballerina to perform for the Paris Opera, actresses Ruth Attaway and Jane White, and Frederick O'Neal who founded the American Negro Theater. But the network couldn't get a sponsor, so the show was dropped.

Will Mastin died on March 14, 1979, at age 100, according to the California Death Index. He is interred at Forest Lawn Memorial Park in Glendale, California, near Sammy Davis Sr. and Sammy Davis Jr. in the Davis family tomb.

Washington in One Minute

Here are the happenings in Washington, D.C., this week:

1. ON THE FLOOR. The House and Senate were in recess this week for the Presidents' Day Holiday, but committees still held virtual hearings this week. After a 5-day impeachment trial last week, the Senate on Saturday (Feb. 13) failed to convict former President Trump for the second time in 12 months on a vote of 57 Senators voting "guilty" to 43 voting "not guilty" (67 votes were needed to convict). 7 GOP Senators joined all 50 Democrats voting guilty: Sens. Burr (R-NC), Cassidy (R-LA), Collins (R-ME), Murkowski (R-AK), Romney (R-UT), Sasse (R-NE), and Toomey (R-PA).

2. BIDEN 100 DAYS. On Tuesday night at 8 p.m. EST, President Biden traveled to Milwaukee, Wis., to participate in a Town Hall event aired live from the Pabst Theater hosted by the CNN Network and moderated by Anderson Cooper. On Thursday, he traveled to Portage, Mich., (near Kalamazoo) to meet with employees at the Pfizer plant where COVID vaccines are manufactured. Last Wednesday, the Biden Administration transmitted a letter to the U.S. Supreme Court reversing the previous administration's opposition to the Affordable Care Act (also known as Obamacare), which had urged the court to strike down the law in its entirety when it hands down its decision this year in California v. Texas.

3. COVID RELIEF BILL. Last week, nine (9) House committees worked expeditiously to approve their portions of the Biden Administration's $1.9 trillion COVID relief bill as part of the budget reconciliation process. These individual bills are due to the House Budget Committee by Tuesday (Feb. 16), which will then combine the bills into a single Reconciliation bill, which will be taken up on the House floor next week. Some observers have speculated that the House-passed Reconciliation bill (which will include direct payments of $1400 and a $15 minimum wage) may bypass the Senate committees and be brought directly to Senate floor in order to be sent to the President for his signature by the March 14 target date.

4. CONGRESSIONAL EARMARKS. The new Punchbowl News site reports that Rep. Rosa DeLauro (D-CT) and Sen. Patrick Leahy (D-VT), the new Chairs of the House and Senate Appropriations Committees, will announce as early as next week that - after a ban of 10 years - Democrats will reinstate congressionally-added projects (commonly referred to as "earmarks") in the FY2022 spending bills. These earmarks will be limited to state and local governments and nonprofits that carry out quasi-government functions.

5. FEDERAL DEBT/GDP.

Last Thursday, the Congressional Budget Office (CBO) announced that America's federal debt, which at $21 trillion was at 100% of gross domestic product (GDP) in 2020, will continue an upward trend and be at 102% of GDP in 2021

- which is the first time since the aftermath of World War II in 1946. The large increase in debt is primarily due to the $4 trillion that has been spent by the federal government on the coronavirus pandemic since March 2020 and does not take into account the possible addition of a new $1.9 trillion COVID relief bill and a possible infrastructure/stimulus bill.

6. COMMUNITY COLLEGE ADVOCACY. Last week, Hamm Consulting Group joined Lansing Community College for the annual Association of Community College Trustees National Legislative Summit. The 2021 virtual conference provided the opportunity for college leaders and policymakers to discuss federal priorities and advocacy for community colleges. Hamm Consulting and Lansing CC were also joined by First Lady Dr. Jill Biden, House Speaker Nancy Pelosi, and a host of other congressional lawmakers along with leaders from the Biden Administration who shared their agendas for higher education and workforce development.
