HUMAN TRAFFICKING

The North Alabama Human Trafficking Task Force is bringing awareness to the perils of human trafficking with a program set for Sunday, April 23, at First Baptist Huntsville Life Center at 600 Governors Drive.

Guest speakers include Pat McCay and Lynn Caffery. McCay is founder/chair of the Huntsville-Madison County Human Trafficking Task Force. Caffery heads the Tennessee Valley Family Services.

Human trafficking, organizers say, is the second largest criminal industry in the world.

Attendees should use Entrance #7, off St. Clair Street.

Diversity Theme of IMS Awards Dinner

The Interfaith Mission Service (IMS) will hold its Annual Celebration and Awards Dinner on May 2 at the UAH Exhibit Hall at 6 p.m.

Dr. Greg Barsh of the HudsonAlpha Institute for Biotechnology will be the keynote speaker. Barsh will speak on the theme: "The Genetics of Human Diversity."

During the awards program, IMS will present four awards to the Temple B'Nai Sholom & the Huntsville Islamic Center (Rabbi Ballon Interfaith Harmony Award); Pat McCray of the Human Trafficking Taskforce (Ala.) (Charles L. Ray, Jr. Social Justice Award); Capt. Jeffrey Rice, Huntsville Police Department, North Precinct (Marilyn Mabry Racial Harmony Award); and Phoenix Huntsville (Direct Service Award).

Normalites Remember Revered AAMU Dean of Women

The Alabama A&M University Family and thousands of Normalites mourn the death of one of their most revered staff members.

Although born in Birmingham, Ala., Bettye Jean Jones Knowles was a graduate of Carver High School in Gadsden, Ala., and would later work tirelessly for the preservation of the school's history. She attended Alabama A&M University, where she earned a bachelor's degree (elementary education) and a master's degree (counseling).

Knowles began her career working for her Carver High as the school secretary and then for Nancy Oden Junior High School as a teacher and a counselor. Simultaneously, she worked the summer program for what is now known as the J.W. Stewart Head Start Center. During this time in history, integration was taking place and the schools for the African American communities were rapidly closing. After both these schools closed, she became a teacher and counselor at General Forrest Middle School.

Knowles eventually returned to AAMU, where she was the first associate dean of students. She advanced to the position of Dean of Women, serving for several years and until her retirement.

"She was one of my deans while I was a student at AAMU," commented Dr. Dorothy W. Huston of Huntsville, Ala.-based TMT Group, Inc. "She was a loving, caring and student-focused leader."

Beyond retirement, she remained active in many organizations, including Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, Inc., the SCLC Wills Creek District, the Etowah County Retired Teachers Association and others.

Ninety-Eight and Counting

The dilemma of "what to do for one's 98th birthday" was solved by nine of Mrs. Evangeline Spillman's friends: "dinner at The Ledges as a pre-birthday celebration on Friday, April 14, 2017." Hosted by Mrs. Brenda Martin and Dr. Barbara Anthony, the evening started with an acrostic to describe the honoree. The results were as follows: E- elegant; V- vivacious; A- amazing; N- nice; G- great; E- effervescent; L- lovely; I- incredible; N- nostalgic; E- everlasting (a self-description that drew laughter).

Some of the words could have also been used to describe the ambience, service and delicious food that was enjoyed as the group reminisced with vignettes of their times with "Van". We are looking forward to the 99th.

Washington in a Minute

Here are the top issues in Washington, D.C., this week:

1. The House and Senate are out of session this week and will reconvene next week.

2. President and Mrs. Trump hosted up to 21,000 children and their parents on the White House's South Lawn for the annual Easter Egg Roll. On Friday, he nominated ex-Rep. Scott Garrett (R-NJ) to head the Export-Import Bank. Garrett, who was defeated in November by Democrat Josh Gottheimer, has been a vocal critic of the bank.

3. According to the Politico website, senior Trump Administration officials met Tuesday to decide whether to recommend that the U.S. withdraws from 2015's 194-country Paris Climate Agreement, which aims to reduce greenhouse gas emissions. Expected to be in attendance are National Economic Council director Gary Cohn, Secretary of State Rex Tillerson, National Security Adviser LTG H.R. McMaster, EPA administrator Scott Pruitt, Secretary of Energy Rick Perry, senior adviser Jared Kushner, and chief strategist Steve Bannon.

4. Vice President Mike Pence was in South Korea over the weekend - including an unscheduled visit to the Demilitarized Zone - on the first leg of a 10-day trip, which included stops in Japan, Indonesia and Australia.

5. Newly-confirmed Supreme Court Justice Neil Gorsuch took his seat on the Supreme Court Monday to give the court its full complement of 9 justices. On Wednesday, the justices heard the case of Trinity Lutheran Church of Columbia (MO) v. Comer, in which the church is challenging its exclusion from a state program that provides money to use ground-up tires to cushion playgrounds. Missouri is among roughly 3 dozen states with constitutions that explicitly prohibit using public money to aid a religious institution.

6. Sen. Bernie Sanders (I-VT) and Democratic National Committee Chair Tom Perez started their 6-day, 8-state tour across the country as part of their "Come Together and Fight Back" tour. The tour included stops in Portland (ME); Louisville, Miami, Dallas, Omaha, Salt Lake City, Mesa (AZ), and Las Vegas. Sanders supported Perez's opponent, Rep. Keith Ellison (D-MN), in the recent DNC Chair election.

7. During his campaign, President Trump took a slightly populist approach to student loans, calling student loan debt an "albatross" around the necks of borrowers. He proposed a repayment plan that was in some ways more generous to borrowers than Barack Obama's and even echoed Sen. Elizabeth Warren's refrain that the government shouldn't "profit" off its student loan program. However, since becoming Education Secretary, Betsy DeVos has taken over the $1 trillion-plus federal student lending operation and has rolled back Obama-era policies aimed at protecting student loan borrowers. Last week she rescinded policies aimed at standardizing and improving customer service from student loan servicers. She has also taken steps to rehire four debt collection firms fired by the previous administration over allegations of misleading struggling borrowers about their options. Finally, she repealed Obama's ban on certain fees that debt collectors may charge borrowers who default on student loans guaranteed by the federal government.

MDA Manager A&M Founder's Day Speaker

The software acquisition manager for the Missile Defense Agency will be the speaker for the Founder's Day observance on Friday, May 5, in the T.M. Elmore Building at 11 a.m.

Pamela Moore McDonald began her professional career in 1983 with United Space Booster, Incorporated, in Huntsville, Ala., after graduating with a Bachelor of Science degree in electrical engineering technology from Alabama A&M University.

In 1987, after completing electrical engineering equivalent course work at the University of Alabama Huntsville, McDonald began her federal civil service career at the U. S. Army Aviation and Missile Command (AMRDEC). She was assigned to the Research Engineering Development Center Software Engineering Directorate as an Electronics Engineer.

McDonald currently serves as the Software Acquisition Manager for the Missile Defense Agency. She is the senior software acquisition management advisor to the MDA Director, the Director for Engineering and the Program Executives. She provides leadership and direction to the MDA, Director of Engineering Independent Assessment (DEA) Software Acquisition Management (SAM) Office, ensuring a consistent, standardized methodology for the acquisition of software throughout the MDA.

McDonald also holds a Master of Science degree in management science from the Florida Institute of Technology, and she is a graduate of the Defense Management College.

Champion Game Plan for Life

by Preston Brown

1 Peter 1:3-4 says, praise be to the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ! In His great mercy He has given us new birth into a living hope through the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead and into an inheritance that can never perish, spoil or fade. As we read this text, we should all realize that Peter has a new level of praise. Remember, Peter was the one who denied Jesus three (3) times before the rooster crowed. And since Jesus died on the cross, there was no way for him to tell Jesus just how sorry he was for doing that. I can't imagine the pain and the hurt that he must have gone through. But the good news to Peter and for all of us is that Jesus did not perish on the cross. He lives, Christ Jesus lives today. And, because he lives we can face tomorrow. You see, Jesus forgave Peter, and now, has a new level of praise ...

Also, there is a different kind of praise that you give when you are on the other side of the pain and the hurt that you have been through and God is still faithful. Remember your faith can not be proven if you never go through any storms in your life ...

Stay encouraged, my brothers and sisters.

The Alabama A&M University College of Business and Public Affairs' Center for Entrepreneurship, Innovation, and Economic Development (CEIED), in cooperation with the AAMU-Rise Foundation, announces the SBIR-STTR Conference on April 23 -25 on the AAMU campus.

Prospective participants still have an opportunity to help shape a conference that meets their unique interest, according to Dr. Teresa M. Orok, CEIED executive director. The Small Business Innovation Research (SBIR) program is a highly competitive program that encourages domestic small businesses to engage in federal research/research and development (R/R&D) that has the potential for commercialization.

Through a competitive awards-based program, SBIR enables small businesses to explore their technological potential and provides the incentive to profit from its commercialization. By including qualified small businesses in the nation's R&D arena, high-tech innovation is stimulated and the United States gains entrepreneurial spirit as it meets its specific research and development needs.

Additionally, the Small Business Technology Transfer (STTR) expands funding opportunities in the federal innovation research and development (R&D) arena. Key to this program is expansion of the public/private sector partnership to include the joint venture opportunities for small businesses and nonprofit research institutions. However, the unique feature of the STTR program is the requirement for the small business to formally collaborate with a research institution in Phase I and Phase II.

Funding for research and development is moving away from grants, says Orok. Instead, it is becoming essential for Historically Black Colleges and Universities (HBCUs), as well as all Minority Serving Institutions, to start competing for government and private industry contracts.

The AAMU-RISE Foundation and the AAMU Center for Entrepreneurship, Innovation, & Economic Development are hosting this conference to bring together experts from government agencies, leading R&D companies, and academic institutions. They will be sharing their expertise, thus enabling HBCUs and MSIs to partner with the government and its contractors as they develop and commercialize innovative technologies.

For registration and other information, contact CEIED at (256) 372-5603 or e-mail teresa.orok@aamu.edu.

Annual Bilderberg Conference Scheduled for June

The 2017 annual meeting of Bilderberg Conference participants is likely to return to U.S. soil between June 1-4 at Westfields Marriott in Chantilly, Va.

Since its inaugural meeting in 1954, Bilderberg has been an annual forum for informal discussions, designed to foster dialogue between Europe and North America. Every year, between 120-150 political leaders and experts from industry, finance, academia and the media are invited to take part in the meeting. About two thirds of the participants come from Europe and the rest from North America; one third from politics and government and the rest from other fields.

According to the organization's website, the meeting is a forum for informal discussions about megatrends and major issues facing the world. The meetings are held under the Chatham House Rule, which states that participants are free to use the information received, but neither the identity nor the affiliation of the speaker(s) nor of any other participant may be revealed.

Thanks to the private nature of the meeting, the participants are not bound by the conventions of their office or by pre-agreed positions. As such, they can take time to listen, reflect and gather insights.

There is no detailed agenda, no resolutions are proposed, no votes are taken, and no policy statements are issued.

Award-Winning Film Screened at Lowe Mill

by Reggie Allen

The Lowe Mill Arts & Entertainment Center hosted the Alabama premiere of "The Atoning" on April 14. Organized as a red-carpet event, the screening featured appearances from the cast and the film's additional staff. The screening capped off with commentary from the director, Michael Williams.

Directed and written by Williams, "The Atoning" is an 84-minute horror-thriller that stars Virginia Newcomb and Michael LaCour as Vera and James, a married couple trying to protect their son Sam (Cannon Basarge) from demonic spirits haunting their home. But the supernatural isn't the only thing that torments the family of three. They must also combat the demons from within and unearth the secrets of their dark past.

While Williams has worked on various projects, "The Atoning" is his second feature film. In 2014, he made his directorial debut with OzLand, a horror-thriller based on the L. Frank Baum classic

"The Wonderful Wizard of Oz."

The film made its debut at the Oxford Film Festival in February. Over the next few months, it would go on to receive multiple accolades, including Best Home Grown at the Magnolia Film Festival and Best Feature at the Azalea Film Festival.

"The Atoning" also stars Dorothy Weems, Alex Zuko, Sherrie Eakin, Ashlynn Lopez, Jessy Hughes, Kyle Wigginton, Nikki Caruso and Bryan Benfield. The premiere was sponsored by the Alabama Film Co-op.

Burritt on the Mountain to Hold 2nd Annual Celtic Day

Burritt's second annual Celtic Day (May 13, 10 a.m.-3 p.m.), celebrating the history and culture of Ireland, Scotland and Wales, is an event many won't want to miss.

In conjunction with Clan Davidson Society, USA and the Irish Society of North Alabama, Burritt will host a day of blarney stones, Scottish harpers, dance, music and arts of Celtic countries. Come see lacemaking and blacksmithing demonstrations, discover how to trace your genealogy, and enjoy creating children's crafts.

Children will want to join in our Junior Games while adults get a kick out of watching a caper toss with swim noodles, potato and spoon relays, and a modified stone put competition. Feicfidh mé ann thú! (See you there!) Admission is included in general admission prices.

ACES Holding Earth Day Events

The Alabama Cooperative Extension System's Urban Affairs and New Nontraditional Programs unit (Urban Affairs) will participate in two upcoming Earth Day events.

The first event is the 47th Annual Earth Day Festival and Farmer's Market that will be held at the Monte Sano State Park Picnic Area located at 5105 Nolen Avenue SE, Huntsville, Ala., Sunday, April 23, from 12-5 p.m. The Flint River Conservation Association is hosting more than 50 earth friendly exhibitors. There will also be a farmers market, a raptor bird show, a family mountain bike ride, music, food trucks, hands-on activities for kids, solar telescopes, geocaching, and much more.

For more information, visit aces.edu. Urban Affairs and New Nontraditional Programs also plans to participate in Operation Green Team's 2017 Earth Day Festival at Hays Nature Preserve on Saturday, April 22 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., located at 7161 Hays Preserve Trail Southeast, Owens Cross Roads, Ala. For the past three years Urban Affairs has been a sponsor of the butterfly release, one of the most anticipated Earth Day activities taking place at 11 a.m. and 1 p.m.

This event is free and features more than 70 organizations and businesses with various activities and demonstrations.

AAMU Takes Part in Earth Day Observance

Alabama A&M University participated in the "Get on the Bus" Earth Day celebration event.

All students, faculty, and staff had access to ride the Huntsville Shuttle bus free April 17-21, 2017, with a school ID.

Support for the effort included a Mayor's proclamation, stressing the importance of participation by the campus and surrounding Tennessee Valley community.

Harley-Davidson Official to Address Local Grads

The more than 500 persons scheduled to receive degrees at Alabama A&M University's spring commencement exercises will receive words from a woman who once sat among them on her eventual climb through the corporate world.

After earning her degree in nursing from cross-town University of Alabama in Huntsville, Tchernavia Rocker received the Master of Business Administration degree from AAMU.

Now a certified senior professional in human resources, Rocker is vice president of human resources for Harley-Davidson Motor Company, where she supervises over 200 HR employees.

Rocker's extended role includes employee and labor relations, talent management, training, organizational development, performance management, diversity, safety, occupational health and other functions.

She has performed similar HR duties at Goodyear Dunlop North America Tire, Inc., in addition to securing experiences in healthcare and scientific research at other organizations.

The administrator previously served on the boards of the Urban Economic Development Association, Progressive Community Health Centers, the Cripus Attucks Center and the South George Street Community Partnership.

Her current affiliations include the Board of Directors for the Next Door Foundation; Mount Mary University in Milwaukee, Wis.; the Society for Human Resource Management; and the National Black MBA Association.

Local Essence Magazine guest columnist shares own unique addiction struggles, God's rescue

Q: Ever been fired, but thanked employer for busting you--for your addiction that's actually older than humans?

Oakwood University's thrice-fired Public Relations director Tim Allston's new free e-Book, 7 Steps to Manage Ego Problems: The How-to Guide for "Somebody Else," www.getegohelpnow.org, introduces ego-holism--"thinking too highly of yourself, and/or too little of our God, and then acting excessively upon those impulses."

In December 2002, then-AAMU Research & Development VP Dr. Dorothy W. Huston debuted Allston's "Welcome to the Twin Cities of Egos" seminar-workshop as a professional development training for her division's staffers; Essence Magazine's "Brothers" September 2003 column featured Allston's riches-to-rags-to-riches rollercoasting story, "I Was My Own Worst Enemy."

There's nothing wrong with having an ego, which every dictionary defines as "a sense of self," explained Allston; every person, organization, activity and event has an ego, or sense of self, the recovering ego-holic continued.

"Ego-holism, like alcoholism, results from an excess: when you and I don't partner with the un-defeated God in every situation. We either apply too much of ourselves (big ego-holism, or egotism) and/or too little of our God (low or no esteem, or little ego-holism); only He knows the exact amounts of 'God and us' to apply, for perfect balance."

7 Steps opens by posing questions about Donald Trump, Hillary Clinton, NBA star Kevin Durant and Super Bowl MVP quarterback Tom Brady; Allston concludes, "the answers to those questions and my personal problem all expose an addiction that is actually older than Planet Earth!"

When firing Allston in December 2013, OU president Dr. Leslie Pollard targeted and counseled his exiting PR director as a "genius ... with a problem. Get help. Now."

That Dear-John meeting led the self-identified "serial successful and celebrated failure" to deepen his prayer/Bible study life; to seek Dr. Calvin O. Matthews' professional counseling; to name his website after Pollard's directive, www.getegohelpnow.org; and to write this e-Book--a one-sitting read--as the free introduction to an upcoming eight-book series, detailing the seven recovering steps.

Citing the U.S. Social Security Administration, Allston was:

- Fired 13 times;
- Most firing occurred after receiving top industry awards; and
- In 39 years of employment, never ever received a job promotion . . .

"... But God, ..." Allston added.

In explaining his layman's insights on ego addictions/recovering, the 62-year-old Huntsvillian qualifies his unique opposite-side-of-the-desk perspective, declaring:

- "I'm not a doctor - instead, I'm the patient;
- I'm not a pastor - rather, I'm the sinner in the pew;
- I'm not a professor - preferably, I'm the student advisee;

•I'm not a therapist - alternately, I'm the client;

•I'm not a lawyer - unfortunately, I'm the victim and too often, I'm the perpetrator. Yes and too often, I was the criminal . . .

"... But God, ..."

Aerojet Rocketdyne Linked to 800 New Jobs

Aerojet Rocketdyne recently announced it will build its next-generation rocket engine in the Rocket City.

This brings a $100 million capital investment and 800 new jobs to Huntsville with an estimated annual payroll impact of $50 to $60 million.

It is a big boost to Huntsville's already robust rocket economy and solidifies our position as the propulsion capital of the nation, and by default, the world. Consider Huntsville's role in propulsion. The Marshall Space Flight Center has been named NASA's Center of Excellence for propulsion.

On Redstone Arsenal, the Program Executive Office for Missiles and Space is headquartered here, performing 85 percent of our nation's missile defense work.

Companies like Boeing, Raytheon, Dynetics, Lockheed, ULA and many others are key players in the propulsion field with significant operations in our area.

Aerojet Rocketdyne's propulsion portfolio includes a commercial satellite market as well as major support for the military. The company's decision to consolidate and move east and west coast operations to Huntsville shows the strength of our highly skilled workforce and something more.
