Washington in One Minute

Here are the happenings in Washington, D.C., this week:

1. The Senate is in session this week. The House has no votes scheduled on the floor, but held several committee hearings, including a House Judiciary Committee hearing Wednesday on “Policing Practices and Law Enforcement,” at which Philonise Floyd, the brother of George Floyd, will testify. The Senate will take up an Internal Revenue Service reform bill and legislation to permanently fund the Land and Water Conservation Fund at $900 million per annum, which uses oil and gas revenue to fund conservation programs such as securing land for national parks. The Senate Armed Services Committee will begin a series of markups of the FY2021 defense authorization bill.

2. On Monday, House and Senate Democrats, led by Congressional Black Caucus Chair Karen Bass (D-CA), were expected to introduce sweeping racial justice legislation in response to the ongoing massive protests around the country and the world on the killing of George Floyd by Minneapolis police. The bill reportedly bans police chokeholds, limit qualified immunity for police officers, create a national police misconduct registry, end the use of no-knock warrants in drug cases, and make lynching a federal crime.

3. Last Thursday, President Trump issued an emergency executive order directing federal agencies, including the Department of Transportation and the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, to expedite federal infrastructure projects by waiving environmental regulations in view of the emergency caused by the COVID-19 outbreak. Federal agencies must report within 30 days with a list of projects they have expedited under this order. On Sunday, he ordered 4,900 National Guard troops to begin leaving D.C. (Washington Mayor Muriel Bowser had objected to the deployment of the National Guard in the city without her request and had sent a letter to the President last week demanding that he remove the troops.) On Monday, the President hosted a roundtable discussion with law enforcement personnel at the White House.

4. On Tuesday, the House Energy and Commerce Environment and Climate Change Subcommittee held a virtual hearing on “Pollution and Pandemics: COVID-19’s Disproportionate Impact on Environmental Justice Communities.” The hearing assessed the relationship between disproportionate exposures to environmental pollution and disproportionate effects of the 2019 coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic.

5. On Thursday, the Senate Judiciary Committee voted on broad subpoena authority as part of Committee Chair Lindsey Graham’s (R-SC) investigation into Operation “Crossfire Hurricane,” the FBI’s investigation into Russian election interference and the Trump campaign, and the subsequent Mueller investigation. Graham announced last month that he would force a vote on the ability to subpoena dozens of officials, including former FBI Director James Comey and former national security adviser Susan Rice, for the committee’s probe of whether the FBI investigation was politically motivated to discredit the Trump Administration.

6. Last week, the Republican National Committee voted to allow the official business of the GOP National Convention to continue in Charlotte, N.C., starting on August 24, while also deploying site selection teams to several cities that might serve as alternate sites for President Trump to give his nomination acceptance speech, including Jacksonville, Nashville, Dallas, Phoenix, New Orleans and Savannah. President Trump has objected to potential restrictions on the number of attendees at the Charlotte Spectrum Center site.

7. As the U.S. Supreme Court’s 2019-2020 term comes to an end this month, the court over the next 2 weeks will be issuing decisions on abortion, Electoral College procedures, LGBT rights in the workplace, the deportation status of nearly 700,000 young undocumented immigrants and the fate of President Trump’s tax returns.

8. A new NBC News/Wall Street Journal poll released on Sunday found that 80% of registered voters say they feel that things are generally out of control in the country. 59% of all voters — including 54% of whites, 65% of Latinos and 78% of African Americans — said they’re more troubled by George Floyd’s death and the actions of police versus 27% who said they’re more concerned about the protests over Floyd’s death, some of which turned violent. The poll also found that by 51% to 40% voters prefer to have Democrats in control of Congress and favor Joe Biden over Donald Trump by 49% to 42% (unchanged since the April poll). The poll of 1,000 registered voters on May 28-June 2 has a margin of error of + 3.1%.

Coming November 3rd: Harvesting the Wheat and the Tares

Jesus: Let both grow together until the harvest, and at the time of harvest I will say to the reapers, "First gather together the tares and bind them in bundles to burn them, but gather the wheat into my barn" - Matthew 13:30.

Ever wonder why Jesus knowingly befriended Judas as one of his 12 disciples, knowing that Judas would later arrange Jesus' crucifixion and death?

In his parable of the wheat and the tares, Jesus cautioned that both must be allowed to grow together, as they are initially indistinguishable until harvest time.

And just as Judas distinguished and ultimately killed himself, those tares in our lives too will ultimately expose themselves and be bundled and burned.

The Seeds of Choice

From birth, each of us was gifted with free choice for both good and evil. Our inherent sinful nature defaults us toward sin (tares).

Yet God offers us lovingly the option of becoming fruitful and nourishing (wheat) to others.

As we grow intellectually, physically, spiritually and socially as did Jesus (Luke 2:52), we choose to become either wheat (fruitful, productive) or tares (destructive). There are no other options, no middle-of-the-road waffling.

Researchers say that humans entertain two million thoughts daily, from which 30,000 to 35,000 everyday decisions are made - either wheat-or tares-oriented.

Sooner or later, each planted seed will demonstrate its quality, whether for good or for evil.

When, then, is Harvest Time?

Sowers harvest in the fall after sufficient time has been allowed for sowing, planting, growing, and finally reaping and harvesting.

For eligible U.S. citizens, that harvesting time will occur also in the fall season - more specifically, November 3rd, when state and national elections (i.e., reaping and harvesting what's been sown) will occur.

Tools for Effective Harvesting

In order to harvest effectively in November, you and I will need to use proper tools (prior voter registration), the right field (polling places), and a knowledge of how to distinguish the wheat from the tares.

The Holy Bible offers a fool-proof roadmap on how to sow, plant, grow, harvest as well as how to destroy - both in our general lives, and specifically on November 3rd.

The Expectations of Citizenry

Acts 16:36-39

Citizenship in a nation based on laws is meant to be beneficial to those who live in that nation. However, there are times when the expectations of citizenry and the experiences differ. Such was the case for Paul and Silas when they were wrongfully accused and imprisoned for what those in power called “teaching customs that were illegal” according to Roman law. Prior to being put in prison, the city officials ordered that they be stripped and severely beaten. This was an example of “public humiliation” that has become far too familiar in our nation. If Paul and Silas were alive today, they more than likely would join in with the peaceful protestors in “pushing back” against the hypocrisy and insensitivity of those in power. I say this because that is exactly what they did when they were released from prison after God’s providential and powerful intervention.

After discovering that they were Roman citizens and after reflecting upon how they had been mistreated, those in power sought to simply release Paul and Silas privately. But Paul and Silas’ expectation of citizenry, that is, “equal protection under the law,” did not match their experience. They demanded that they be “publicly” released, since they had been “publicly” beaten. That is essentially what is going on in our nation today, even as I write this. Citizens are saying now, like Paul and Silas did then, we have expectations of citizenry that do not match our experiences.

Champion Game Plan for Life by Preston Brown

“LET GO AND LET GOD”

Job 2:10 says, “Shall we accept good from God and not trouble?”

We have all come this far by faith, leaning on the Lord. But sometimes our faith is “tied” to the way that we want things to happen, not the way that God wants them to happen. For example, these past few months have been unbearable for so many people. Things like financial unrest due to the Coronavirus that has resulted in an unprecedented shut down of our country. Because of this we have economical, emotional and social unrest. It seems that we are in a “perfect storm” with no help in sight.

So what is the answer? Well it all begins and ends with God. Because now more than ever we need to not only put our faith in God, but we need to allow our faith to grow in these difficult times.

When we read this scripture, we find that Job realized that in this life things don't always work out the way that we want them to. So by faith he had to wait on God's timing. In other words he had to learn to “Let go and let God”. The same can be said for all of us. We all have to accept the good as well as the bad, knowing and being fully persuaded that God is in charge of it all, to bring about necessary changes.

I'm sure that everyone wanted this year 2020 to be better, and it can be if we allow new standards to be put in place that will help us all become stronger, wiser, and better. Our answer to life's problems is to put our faith in God's plan. When we do, we will make it. No matter what circumstance we find ourselves in, don't let your faith be “tied” to the way that you want things to happen. Just remember we need to “Let Go and Let God”.

Stay encouraged, my brothers and sisters.

Racism Deemed a Public Health Crisis

by BlackDoctor.org

City to city across the United States there are protests, walk-outs, and rallies all to protest the senseless killing of unarmed black men and women. But the true reason stems from ongoing racism.

The following statement was released by the American Public Health Association following the death of George Floyd at the hands of Minneapolis police on May 25.

"I can't breathe."

With those last words, George Floyd, an unarmed, handcuffed black man, died this week after being pinned down by a white Minneapolis police officer, an atrocious action that has sparked outrage throughout the nation.

We raise our voices, too, horrified, stunned and angered.

We are appalled but are not surprised by the despicable way Floyd was killed. We weep for the man, his family and a country that continues to allow this to happen. We also join in the chorus for justice and ring the alarm to all Americans. Racism is a longstanding systemic structure in this country that must be dismantled, through brutally honest conversations, policy changes and practices.

Racism attacks people's physical and mental health. And racism is an ongoing public health crisis that needs our attention now!

We see discrimination every day in all aspects of life, including housing, education, the criminal justice system and employment.

And it is amplified during this pandemic as communities of color face inequities in everything from a greater burden of COVID-19 cases to less access to testing, treatment and care.

Americans cannot be silent about this.

As Martin Luther King, Jr. observed, "The ultimate tragedy is not the oppression and cruelty by the bad people but the silence over that by the good people."

We refuse to be silent, and we call for you to join us in our advocacy for a healthier nation. At the American Public Health Association, every moment of our waking hours is poured into finding better, more healthful lives for all, so everyone has a chance to breathe. It's our life-blood.
