

Tennessee Valley Gains a Confucius Institute

The Tennessee Valley is the new site of a coveted Confucius Institute, one of only 107 throughout the United States. The formal announcement of the establishment of a Confucius Institute was made recently on the campus of Alabama A&M University.

The Confucius Institute of Alabama A&M University (CIAAMU) will further the understanding of the Chinese language and culture, as well as facilitate and support business initiatives between China and the United States.

Because of the significant economic relationships between the United States and China, in addition to China's global economic influence, the Confucius Institute will help to enhance the relationship and to serve as a resource throughout north Alabama. The partner university for AAMU is Nanjing Forestry University, Nanjing, China.

Actor Will Address AAMU Commencement

The fall commencement of Alabama A&M University will be held Friday, December 12, at 9 a.m. in the T.M. Elmore Building. The scheduled guest speaker is an artist, educator, activist and entrepreneur.

Lamman Rucker also is the star of the rousing film by Russ Parr, "The Under Shepherd." He is noted for his role in the smash hit sitcom by Tyler Perry, "Meet the Browns." He may also be recognized as Mona's boyfriend 'Chase' on UPN's "Half & Half," as well as his bad boy characters in the daytime dramas "As The World Turns" and "All My Children."

Additionally, Rucker has been a memorable guest star on "Law & Order", "All Of Us" and the popular television movie miniseries "The Temptations." He was born in Pittsburgh, Pa., and grew up in Washington, D.C.

On stage, Rucker received a 2002 Audelco nomination for his portrayal of Jason in Euripides' "MEDEA". Rucker is also a founding member of The Black Gents of Hollywood, a Los Angeles-based, all-Black male theatre company whose powerful play "Black Angels Over Tuskegee" about the Tuskegee Airmen is currently taking the country by storm and in its fifth year off-Broadway.

While in high school, Rucker was an original member of the groundbreaking youth company, the Washington Area Improvisational Teen Theatre (W.A.I.T.T.). The company's primary goal was to promote sexual abstinence to teens and educate young people about their bodies, the risks of teen pregnancy, STD's and HIV/ AIDS. He went on to become a successful teacher, coach, mentor and youth advocate - acquiring a Masters of Science in Education and then on to star in BET's award-winning HIV/AIDS film "Let's Talk" in 2006.

Rucker gave stellar performances as 'Sheriff Troy' in the highly successful motion pictures "Why Did I Get Married?" and its sequel "Why Did I Get Married Too?" with an all-star cast including Jill Scott, Janet Jackson and Tyler Perry.

He also starred in the independent award-winning romantic comedy "I'm Through With White Girls - The Inevitable Undoing of Jay Brooks," as well as the inspirational film "The Greatest Song" which he also Co-Produced. Currently, he stars in the much anticipated film "The Man in 3B" to be released in the Fall of 2014.

Deltas Sponsor Summit Focusing on the Black Male

I profoundly believe that loving, nurturing, guiding, protecting, educating and empowering our children are among the greatest investments we can make in our future.

Unfortunately, a critical segment of our population, some of our prized American assets-our young boys and young men of color, are facing broad, disproportionate and multi-dimensional challenges and steep obstacles, that threaten their survival and success. Sadly, the very places where many of these young people expect to receive guidance and support-such as their households, extended family, faithbased organizations, schools, community organizations, and the criminal justice system, deny them their basic needs, precious rights and privileges.

Committed to improving the quality of life for individuals and families through service, scholarship and sisterhood, the Huntsville Alumnae Chapter of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, Incorporated, sponsored Empowering Males to Build Opportunities for Developing Independence (EM-BODI) Summit II on Saturday, November 22, 2014 at the Four Points Sheraton in Huntsville, Ala. Michelle Leonard is President of this dynamic service- oriented sorority.

Guided by the theme: "A Challenge for Change", interactive and energizing workshop topics were: Choices, The SELFie, Financial Freedom: Needs, Wants, Do's and Don'ts, Your Image- Your Life and Raising Successful Children in a Digital World.

The Empowering Males to Build Opportunities for Developing Independence (EMBODI) program is designed to refocus the efforts of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, Inc., with the support and action of other major organizations, on the plight of African-American males. Both informal and empirical data suggest that the vast majority (of African-American males) continues to be in crisis and are not reaching their fullest potential educationally, socially and emotionally. It addresses these issues through ongoing dialogue, building networks, crafting and executing recommendations for change and action. Emphasis is placed on issues related to STEM education, culture, self-efficacy, leadership, physical and mental health, healthy lifestyles choices, social media, character, ethics, family and interpersonal relationships, college readiness, fiscal management, civic engagement and service learning.

This spectacular youth-focused summit was superbly chaired by Shanay Lewis and co-chaired by Tammy Williams. It was generously co-sponsored by Diverse Educational Life Training Activities, Inc. So linked to the technology young men of color are fascinated with today, the summit attracted a diverse group of 93 young African American boys and teenagers from the Decatur Youth Enrichment Program, the Greater Huntsville Chapter of 100 Black Men, Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity, Inc., Psi Kappa Kappa, Xi Omicron Chapters of Omega Psi Phi Fraternity, Inc., Delta Lambda Chapter of Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity, Inc., local businesses and faith-based organizations. Over 83 parents, relatives and adult youth leaders were also there to encourage and support our young men.

African Americans have amassed a rich and proud legacy of succeeding against seemingly insurmountable odds. Hence, The EMBODI Summit was a summon for all who are concerned about our future, to take an active role in creating pathways to opportunities and success for some of America's greatest resources- our young Black boys and men.

I am going to do my part.

There are several types of families including, but not limited to, the family in which we are born; the family we marry into; the people with which we worship, work and serve; and persons we choose to include in the space we individually define as family. I had the opportunity this past week to spend some time with two of my sisters from south Alabama, along with other immediate and extended family. I have been trying to make them aware of the fact that I-65 runs both north and south; thus, it is good for them to travel north from time to time.

Now that we have given thanks and enjoyed the time spent with family and friends, it is time for us to turn our focus to December and what is going on around us. As promised, we donated coats this past week to Second Chance Ministries. We encourage you to become aware of requests of local charities and respond as you deem appropriate.

In 2009, December was declared by the American Foundation for Paying Attention to Things as "National Awareness Month." This declaration was made in an effort to combat what organizers referred to as our current epidemic of "complete and utter obliviousness." They indicated that millions of men and women are "dangerously unaware" of what is going on around them from day-to-day. Even worse, the vast majority of the millions of Americans across the country who are suffering from this debilitating state of mind don't even know it. This may appear somewhat shocking considering all of the mediums we use to communicate instantly including email, smart phones, iPads, tablets, Facebook and Twitter. Even so, many of us choose to mind our own business and expect others to 'leave us alone.' With this mentality, it is easy to slip into a mode of not being aware of what's going on in the world, state, region or even in the house next door.

On Friday, November 14, 2014, one of our Rosetta James Foundation elders, Ms. Cora Sue McCaulley, passed away at her home. Immediately following the news of her passing, her brother, Mr. Larry McCaulley, subsequently passed away that same day. In a matter of hours, their family was faced with burying a sister and a brother at the same time. Because we have known Ms. McCaulley for many years, we will miss her sweet, loving, and benevolent spirit. She was forever giving and doing for someone else--always in tune with the needs of others, especially her family, friends and neighbors. Blessings to the McCaulley Family from The Valley Weekly team. We knew Larry through Cora Sue. We will miss him, too.

How is it that we are living in a time when a school district can eliminate a deficit of about $20 million and balance the budget in one year; a State is touting jobs and economic development one week and is about $265 million in budget shortfalls the next week after the election; or, law enforcement officers can gun-down unarmed citizens and harass motorists, and yet we remain oblivious to the fact that because this is a problem in Missouri and Ohio, it is also a problem for us? And, we are led to believe that what is going on elsewhere is their business; that we are unlike the rest of the country because our citizens participate in the process when we are faced with the latter issue. Until we are engaged actively, respect diverse human lives with dignity, and question the status quo, much of what we are experiencing will remain the same at minimum. Let's pay attention to what we read, hear and see. Otherwise, we become oblivious to what is going on around us. We can make a positive difference, because each of us has the same 24 hours.

Let's be aware, attuned and make the difference we can make. Until next week,

Dorothy

Let's pay attention to what we read, hear and see. Otherwise, we become oblivious to what is going on around us.

Year-End IRS Tips for Charitable Contributions

Rules for Charitable Contributions of Clothing and Household Items

Household items include furniture, furnishings, electronics, appliances and linens. Clothing and household items donated to charity generally must be in good used condition or better to be tax-deductible. A clothing or household item for which a taxpayer claims a deduction of over $500 does not have to meet this standard if the taxpayer includes a qualified appraisal of the item with the return.

You must get a written acknowledgement from the charity for all gifts worth $250 or more. It must include, among other things, a description of the items contributed.

Guidelines for Monetary Donations

You must have a bank record or a written statement from the charity in order to deduct any donation of money, regardless of amount. The record must show the name of the charity and the date and amount of the contribution. Bank records include canceled checks, and bank, credit union and credit card statements. Bank or credit union statements should show the name of the charity, the date, and the amount paid. Credit card statements should show the name of the charity, the date, and the transaction posting date.

Donations of money include those made in cash or by check, electronic funds transfer, credit card and payroll deduction. For payroll deductions, you should retain a pay stub, a Form W-2 wage statement or other document furnished by your employer showing the total amount withheld for charity, along with the pledge card showing the name of the charity.

These requirements for the

• Year-end gifts. Contributions are deductible in the year made. Therefore, donations charged to a credit card before the end of 2014 count for 2014, even if the credit card bill isn't paid until 2015. Also, checks count for 2014 as long as they are mailed in 2014. • Itemize deductions. Only if you itemize your deductions on Form 1040 Schedule A can you claim deductions for charitable contributions. This deduction is not available to those who choose the standard deduction. This includes anyone who files a short form (Form 1040A or 1040EZ). You will have a tax savings only if the total itemized deductions (mortgage interest, charitable contributions, state and local taxes, etc.) exceed the standard deduction. You may use the 2014 Form 1040 Schedule A to determine whether itemizing is better than claiming the standard deduction.

• Record donations. For all donations of property, including clothing and household items, get from the charity, if possible, a receipt that includes the name of the charity, date of the contribution, and a reasonably-detailed description of the donated property. If a donation is left at a charity's unattended drop site, keep a written record of the donation that includes this information, as well as the fair market value of the property at the time of the donation and the method used to determine that value. Additional rules apply for a contribution of $250 or more.

• Special Rules. The deduction for a car, boat or airplane donated to charity is usually limited to the gross proceeds from its sale. This rule applies if the claimed value is more than $500. Form 1098-C or a similar statement, must be provided to you by the organization and attached to your tax return. If the amount of your deduction for all noncash contributions is over $500, a properly-completed Form 8283 must be submitted with the tax return (Sources: IRS Publications 17 and 526).

They grow weary, collapse from their own weight and ultimately become the fodder upon which a crumbling society of endless manipulation and usury is built and from which it extracts its nutrients.

The lesson, then, of the fallen junebug goes something like this: There are few things that can replace the knowledge of one's true history, yet, out of necessity, history cannot always be safely secured in this realm. Call it "out there," but there is an intergalactic war being waged for the souls of black children throughout the Diaspora. When I reflect on my boyhood summers, I can picture running with friends between a series of A-frame houses, madly chasing junebugs. The neighborhood permitted us to run through yards that were not our own and yet that belonged to all of us.

We would run around, under and between clotheslines, where unmentionables billowed in the wind in the kind of pristine, salvation white that only black hands could wring. Sometimes, the underwear, the sheets and the wind would sense us, would conspire and then would lift themselves skyward as we ran underneath.

For a fleeting moment, the junebug would call the shots. But if it became only a bit too slow or too stricken with narcissism, then it would receive a solid little boy's blow to its green and golden body. The blow to its innocent Eden could not be too severe. Just enough to stun, to disorient, to make it temporarily unaware of its junebugness.

I mean, really. It was just a little too haughty to be an insect, especially with all the God-
